Two pictures, the one a faithful reproduction of a familiar Vermont landscape and the other a genre subject which will be recognized by many Scotch people, are exhibited and admired by many at 8 Merchant street. At the annual meeting of the Spaulding high school athletic association, which was held in the school assembly hall yesterday, plans for the remainder of the spring and the fall athletics were discussed. Account was taken of the financial condition of the association and officers were elected as follows: President, Henry H. Jackson; treasurer, Norman Gordon; secretary, Victor Osola. On account of the meagre support accorded the baseball team by townspeople and students alike, the income from the home games this spring has not been large. C. will make its postponed bow to the public by playing Goddard seminary. To the northward, at the Berlin street ball yard, the Italian A. C. and St. Michael's college of Winoski will come to grips. Rev. H. L. Thorndon and Rev. G. F. Fortier of St. Albans were visitors in the city to-day while on their way home, after having attended the meeting of the Central Vermont Association of Universalist Churches in Williamstown. Rev. J. B. Resard, pastor of the Barre Universalist church, attended the meetings yesterday and he was joined at the afternoon and evening sessions by a number of his parishioners.

Streets about town were subjected to a strenuous scraping yesterday and to-day in anticipation of the arrival of the Standard Oil Co.'s pressure sprinker. The oil duster will reach Barre Monday, unless there is a misarrangement of plans, and the work of laying on the oil will not be delayed very long. When negotiations were completed with the oil company late in April, the oil sprinker was scheduled to arrive in Barre around May 24, but for one reason and another, the motor sprinker was overdue in southern Vermont towns and its appearance in Barre is to be delayed accordingly. Thus far the formal resolution authorizing a street committee to proceed with sprinkling assessments has not been introduced in the city council.
